

My lovely students,

For homework this week, please email me the work you did in class this past Sunday. For your story choice to be considered, you have to email me no later than Friday night

My email is kdeclemente23@gmail.com

If you were not there, this was the assignment:

You should have your top 2 picks for our upcoming class readings written down somewhere (hopefully in a notebook). Please write 2 paragraphs explaining why I should choose the stories you want to read (A paragraph for each story). You should have an idea what the stories are about; it was you're your homework for the previous week to google summaries. What I don't want is a simple sentence like, "I think the story will be interesting." To defend your choices, you must discuss what you found interesting in the summaries you read.
